Using Pose Photos

Thank you for taking a look at Art Models Saju015! You have permission to create and sell finished works of art from these photos. In fact, artists have used Art Models photos to create paintings for sale, art that has won competitions, work for portfolios that has led to jobs, and many other projects.

But your use of the photos doesn't need to be so formal. Maybe you'd just like to get in some practice, or relax during some free time, or flip through the photos to get some ideas.

Whatever you do with the photos, we'd love to see your work; you can email it to me or upload it to the Artworks page on PoseSpace.com.

Because of their higher quality, the poses on the website cost a little more than this ebook, but they're worth it. Give 'em a try. Please let me know what you think by writing to me at contact@livemodelbooks.com.

Visual Table of Contents

If photos are not displaying as you expect, see the section Making Photos Work in eReaders.
Please zoom in for a closer look.

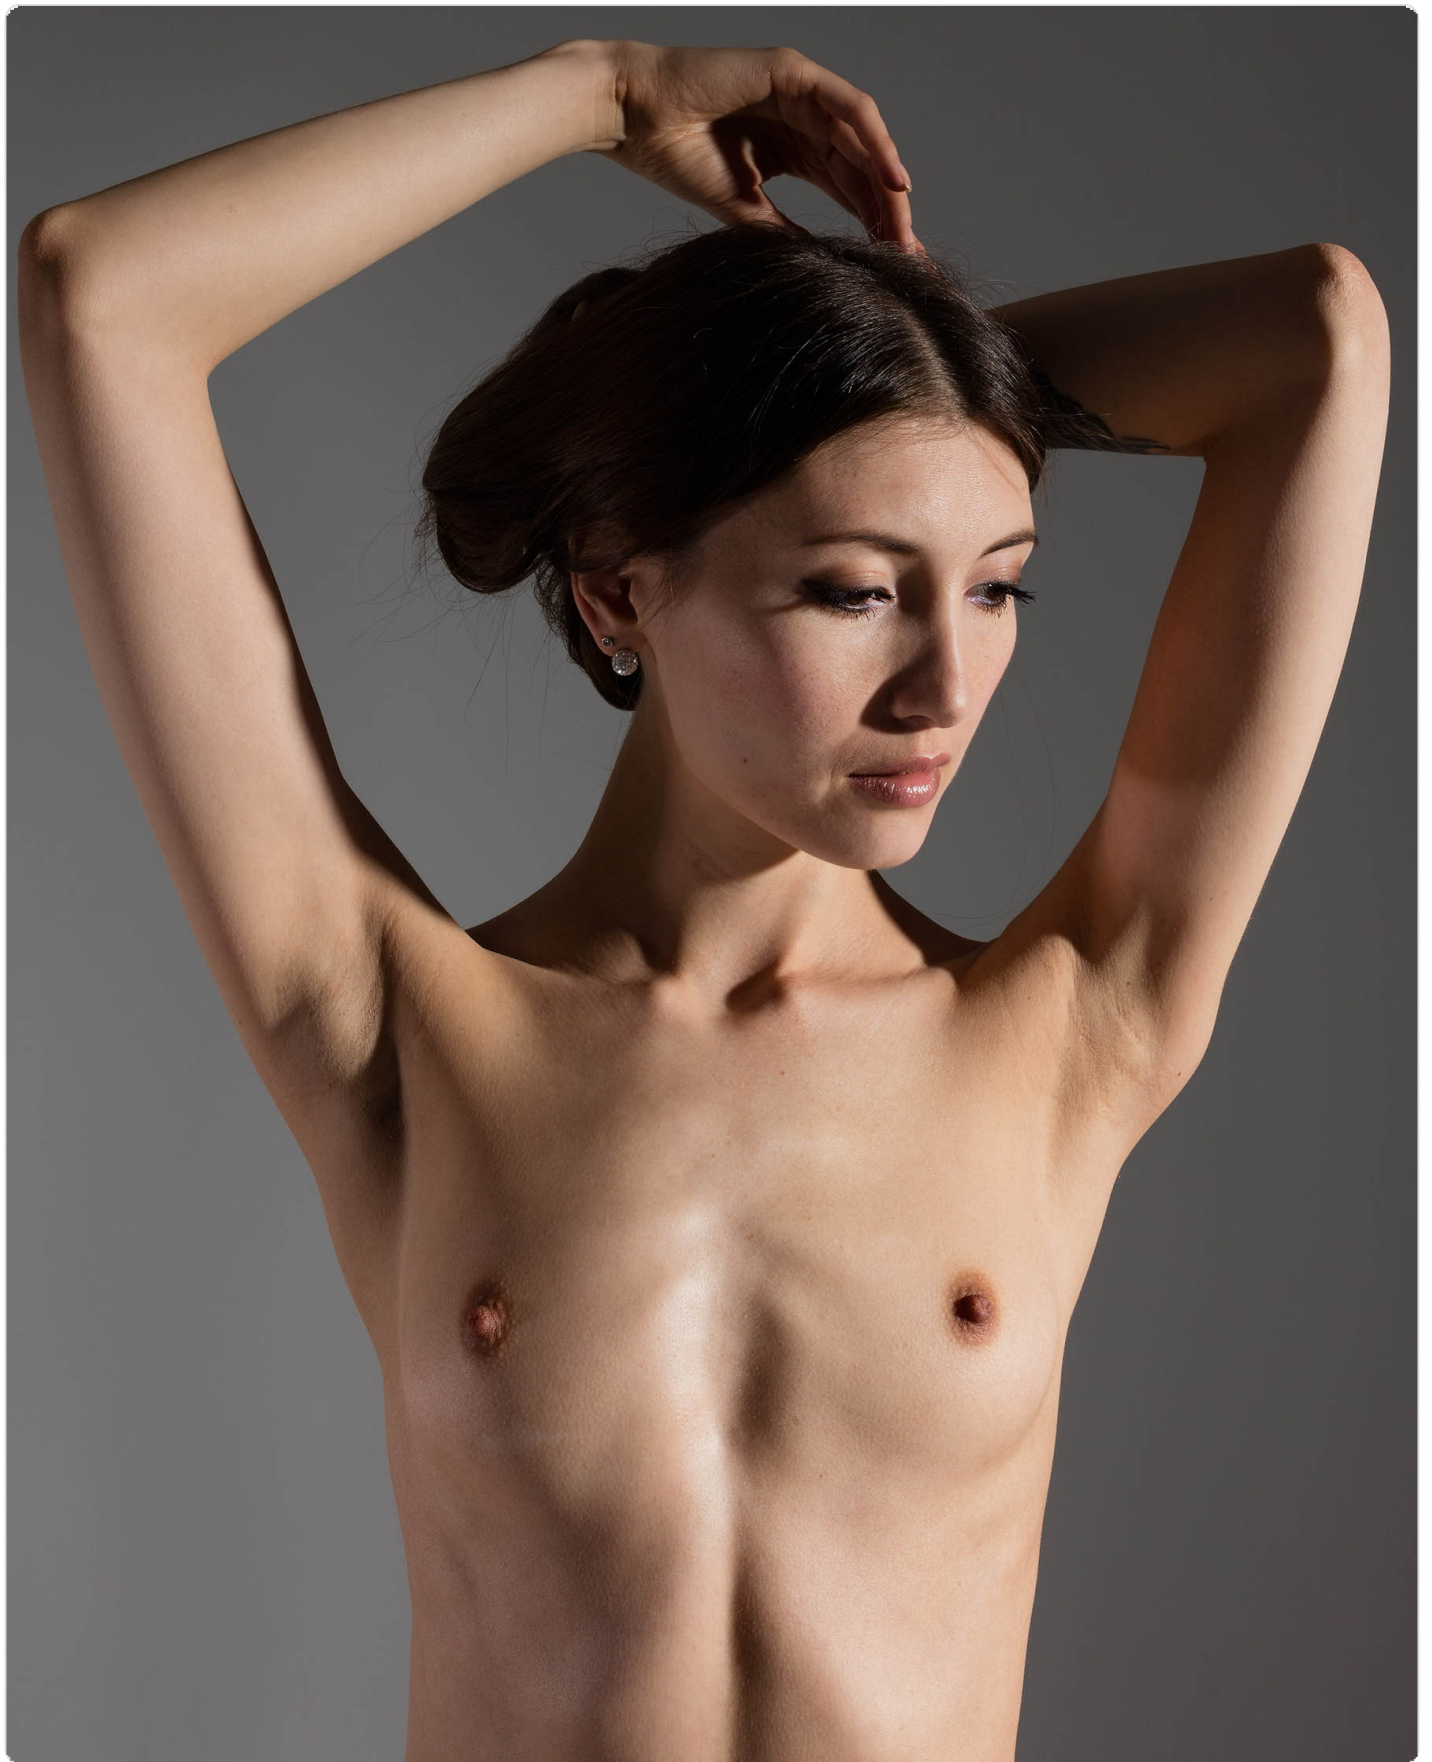

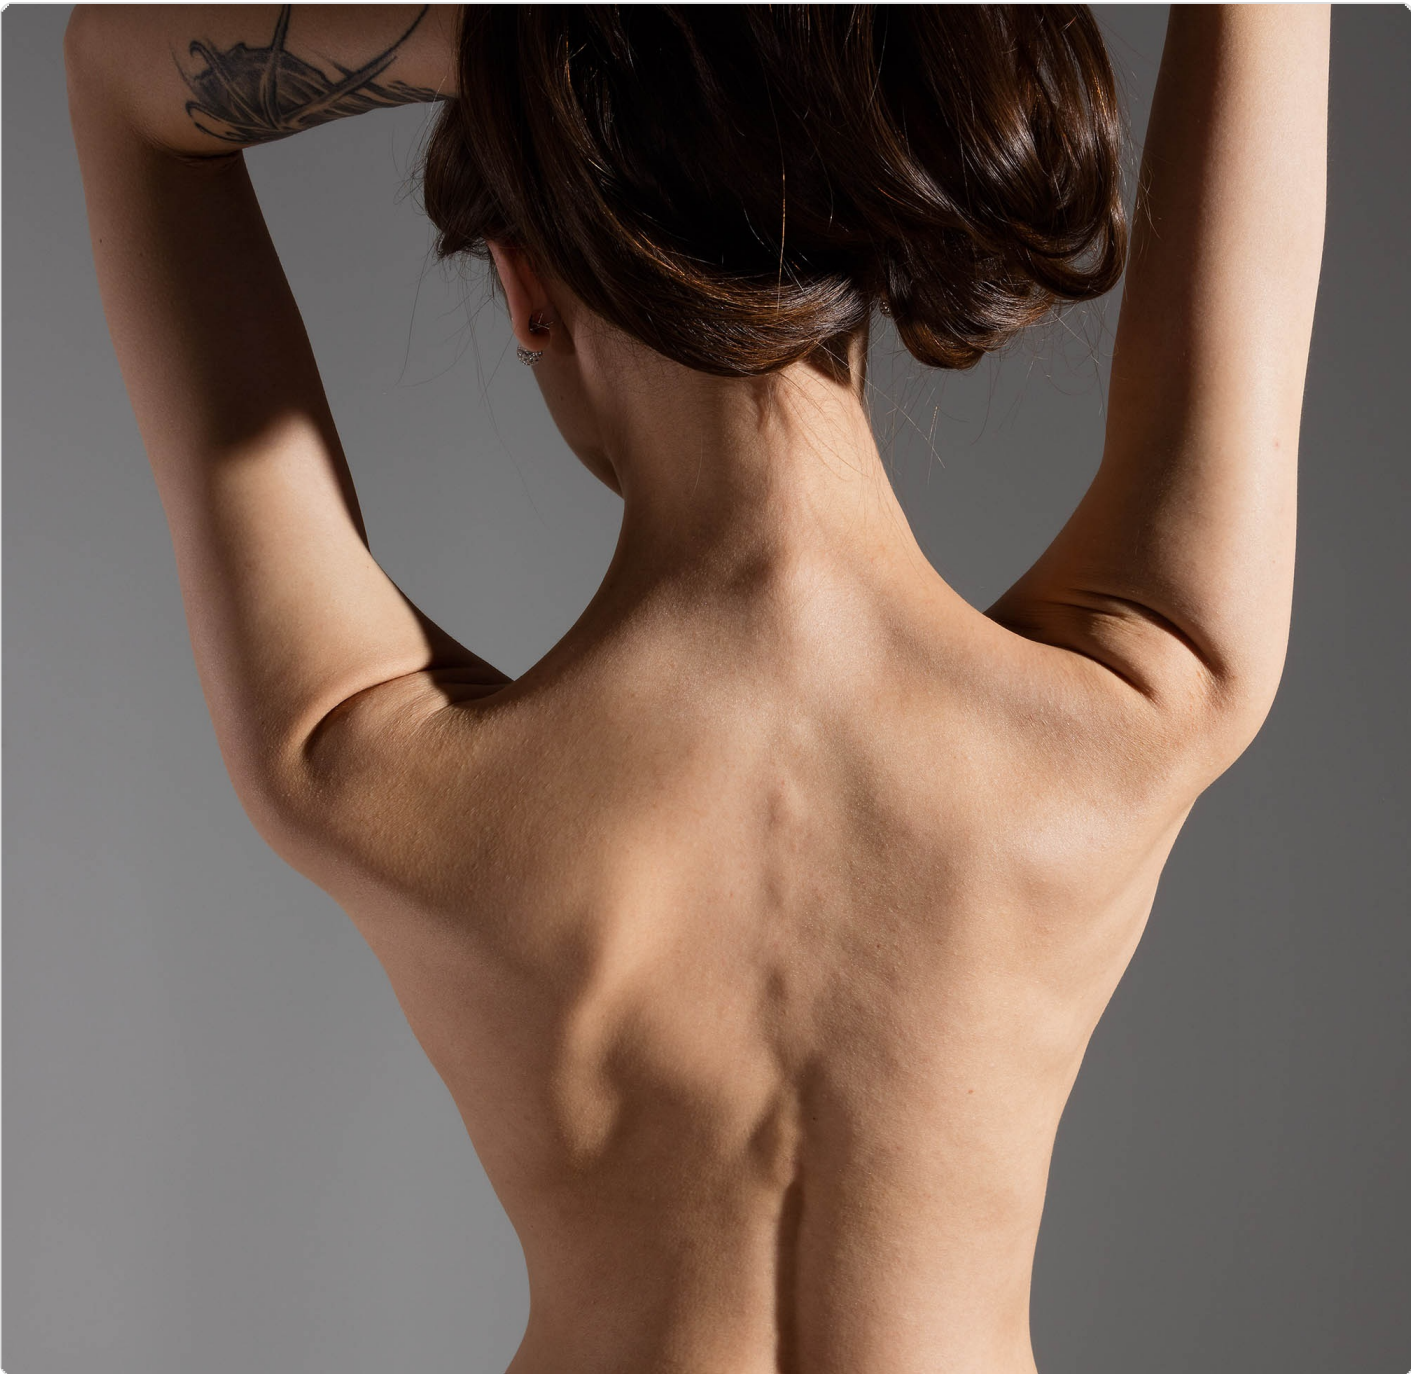

The following photos are a repeat of the first 24. This is not typical for our ebooks, but because this pose is narrow, it loses resolution when adjusted for ereaders. These cropped photos have been adjusted to show a better view of the torso and face at a higher resolution.

Making Photos Work in eReaders

If the photos are not displaying well, please experiment with your reader's settings or, if you can, even try a different reader app.

This book adheres to the EPUB3 standard and passed validation.

Dedicated Readers

We gave extra attention to dedicated reading devices, where you cannot change the display window. If you are not getting good results, try changing display settings; sometimes found under Fonts, or Settings, or More Options, or ooo. For example, reduce margins or change font size or line spacing. On most devices you can zoom in (see Zooming below), which may give a better view of each photo. We tested on actual devices as well as in simulators.

On PC, Mac, or Laptop

Every display device is different and the photos will look different on each one. Try resizing the display window. We set the photos to a 3 by 4 ratio or higher. If you resize the window to, for example, about 600x900 pixels or 800x1175 (a little extra height to allow for titles and margins) that should produce a good display of the images. Often, that will fix the problem of parts of the photos being outside the view. Even though we designed the book so the photos would maintain their aspect ratio while filling the width of the viewer, some applications will ignore the design and distort the photos. For example, during testing, one viewer sometimes squashed the photos to fit in the window. Some experimentation is required to get the best results.

Reading Apps

Apps vary in their ability to display large images well. Sometimes changing settings will give a better view. For example, the Aldiko app was clipping photos until Advanced Formatting was turned off. If one Reader App does not work well, we recommend trying another one, if you can. Please experiment.

Zooming

Every device or app is also different in how it supports zooming of images. Here are some methods that may work:

- Pinch out to zoom in.
- Double-tap, wait a moment, then pinch to zoom.
- Tap and long hold then pinch to zoom.
- Right-click is worth trying.

To exit zoom, sometimes double-tapping worked, sometimes there's an [X], sometimes a <--- symbol, or the back button. Some apps simply refuse to zoom images, for example, the Nook app on some devices did not work.

Royalty Free - Permissions

The photos may be used as a reference for creating traditional art which may then be sold. For example, a drawing, painting, or sculpture is permissible under these guidelines whereas a work which uses the actual photos, such as a collage, would be prohibited.

The photos may be used for games, videos, and digital art if first manipulated in a substantive way, for example, as the basis for a wireframe mesh, skin, or texture. However, they may NOT, in whole or in part, be resold, repackaged and sold, nor given away. If you have any questions, please contact us at contact@livemodelbooks.com.
